TO FATHERS AND MOTHERS

FRIENDS: Your prime interest is in your children. I am urging you to give them even a better chance to gain an education than they are now receiving. You who have visited the high school or the Corwinst building in the past several years know very well how crowded the quarters are. School officials have almost definite assurance that their project for a modern addition to the high school building will be approved if the city puts up its share of the money. This can only be done if you vote favorably on the $50,000 bond issue Tueshave to do is vote YES on the issue. It will it will provide a much better school. Superintendent Frank Fischer, Principal Elmer Reger and all the faculty are doing their utmost, but they are handicapped in having overcrowded classes, and other drawbacks that must be rectified. AGAIN WE URGE YOU TO CAST YOUR BALLOTS FOR THE BOND ISSUE.

Friends Plan to Put Jimmy Walker In Line For Life-Long Pension

New York's Former Playboy Mayor Returns From "Exile" With Thousands Eager to See Him "Get on His Feet" Again

The James J. (Jimmy) Walker of the dapper, gay boom days has become the chastened, impoverished Walker of these days of sobered rebuilding. Here we see the newer Jimmy with Mrs. Walker, the former Betty Compton.

NEW YORK, Nov. 1-A $200,- , Judge Seabury investigation, and | little objection to the arrangement political dish Tammany Hall is D. Roosevelt, which ended abruptrumored to be preparing for form- ly when Walker resigned. er Mayor James J. Walker of New York. For that's the sum the once dapper but now fast ageing Jimmy will theoretically draw as pension the remainder of his days -provided the ex-playboy executive qualifies by proving 20 years in public service. True, the statute declares that the pensioner must be on the city payroll when he applies for retirement.

And that is where his still loyal friends ruling the Tammany wigwam will prove helpful. Since Walker fled to Europe after resigning in 1932 following the exposure of the Seabury investigation, he falls under the ban of bea non-employe. Therefore pre parations have been made, it is rumored, for the returning Jimmy to join the legal staff of George Washington Dodge, Manhattan district attorney and one of the few Tammany candidates to survive the La Guardia-Fusion avalanche. Following a period of rest after the excitement of the homecoming. Walker will serve four or six weeks on the district attorney's staff until the pension machinery grinds out his nest egg, so the rumor goes.

Could Use the Money

For, to all reports, Walker is experiencing depression blues. And the $$15,000 a year pension will help to restore part of the large wardrobe America's bestdressed mayor once displayed. Or should Jimmy decide to bequeath part of his pension as an annuity during the life of his young wife, the former actress Betty Compton, they will have to limit their budget to an annual $7,500.

Should the unexpected occur and Walker be refused a job, he then must be content with merely his paid up contributions to the pension fun, a much smaller sum. But Jimmy's friends have no such nightmares.

It is not surprising that Walker is remembered agreeably by hundreds of thousands in Gotham. Many still cling sentimentally to the dapper Jimmy, despite the humiliating disclosures of the Mayor Walker was "Jimmy," bonvivant, Broadway's kingpin, dashing, quick-witted, and a symbol of Gotham's bright-lighted Ascination for the remainder of the United States. Thousands who remember the fat years of prosperity prior to 1929 hook up the image of Mayor Walker as part and parcel of that fabulous age.

All of That Age It was Jimmy who always was welcoming Atlantic flyers. Lindbergh, Byrd, the Graf Zeppelin crews, heroes, famous visitors. People remember the parades, the ticker tape, spectacles, long lunch hours, entertainment almost every lay. For it was the heyday of Tammany and Tammany Hall desired as long as they voted "right." (Of course, the voters now are paying the piper in taxes.) People remember Jimmy as the man who built up Central Park Casino, a restaurant where only millionaires could afford to go. But it made jokes for most of Manhattan's poor.

For as years went by, jokes were declared by critics to be Walker's major stock in trade as qualification for the job of chief executive of America's largest city. The average poor Tammany voter took great delight in knowing that his Jimmy had come several hours late to an important budget meeting because he had to find the right pair of striped trousers to wear. Walker's tardiness was a prime New York joke, almost a . national gag.

When Glibness Failed Yet even Jimmy's vaunted blibness failed him under the cool, merciless questioning of Judge Samuel Seabury. Walker broke down and began to argue angrily. But Walker's adherents remained loyal. Now, with Jimmy's return from "exile," the old loyalism is beginning to stir again. There is

Big Bill Back Home

Bringing a cheerful smile, William T. (Big Bill) Tilden, former world's amateur tennis champion and now dean of the professional players, is pictured arriving in New York after a vacation in Europe. Big Bill plans to go on tour soon with other pro stars.

000 fatted calf is the succulent the bout with Governor Franklin for pension, one discovers, among the men on the street. It is Walk er's due, and he needs it.

One is quickly told that Jimmy has had hard sledding abroad. That Walker has been hounded by creditors even in England, where he was forced to plead, bankruptcy. That Jimmy's salary as columnist for a big British newspaper isn't enough. That Jimmy sick of drifting around Europe. And many here sighed with pleasure recently upon reading cable that Walker would speed his return upon announcement the federal government had dropped its income tax inquiry.

Not to Run

Rumors that Walker would run scouted. It is pointed out that La gave the voters anything that they Guardia has the tacit benediction of the Roosevelt administration, and that Tammy Hall still hasn't the Roosevelt blessing. Other information asserts that Jimmy will either fit into a lucrative job with some big liquor firm or into a high place in the movierindustry. The last seems to harmonize with the fact that Walker is to be guest of honor at the Lambs' annual dinner here soon. The Lambs is the best known actors' club. There is a rumor, too, that in return for the Roosevelt-Farley forgiveness," Walker will speak
